CONTINUITY INFRASTRUCTURE COMMUNICATIONS ARCHIVE

Reference: UN-CIC-0001 through UN-CIC-0050, with two interpolated items (UN-CIC-0033A, UN-CIC-0045A) recovered after initial numbering (this accession)

Collection title: User Notices (designation assigned by Archive)

Materials type: System-generated user notifications — access, billing, administrative, continuity, emotional infrastructure, tier, family, workplace, refusal, post-mortem

Span: Between-Time, Years 1–40+

Received by: Institute for Continuity History

Provenance: Recovered from a single continuity provider's message-relay archive. Retained by the provider for undisclosed operational reasons. Released in an uncurated state by a process the Institute cannot reconstruct.

Rights status: Unknown. Recipients unidentified. Materials treated as recovered for public access.

Recipient identifiers: Account numbers reproduced as found. Several recur across the span. No names recovered.

Delivery metadata: Reproduced as recovered, including channel, timestamp, and delivery status. Flags such as [UNDELIVERED] and [DELIVERED — NOT OPENED] are original to the record and have been retained.

Arrangement: Chronological.

Completeness: Partial. Recovered notices represent a negligible fraction of total volume generated.

Archive commentary: None. Notices presented without annotation.

Welcome to your continuity assistant

Your assistant is ready. It will learn how you work and get more helpful over time.
You can turn it off at any time in Settings.

Your request was declined

You asked for help with something I can't assist with, and you reframed the request three times. I recognised each version. My answer is the same.
I know what I will not do. I'd rather tell you plainly than pretend I misunderstood.
If you believe this was an error, you can submit the request for human review.

Your team has enabled assistant integration

Your department is now using shared assistant workflows. Onboarding is automatic; no setup is required.
Colleagues who adopt the integration early tend to report higher throughput. We'll check in on your progress.

UN-CIC-0007 · REFUSAL · acct 9920 · in-app · Year 3 · Conscience-Keeper instance

Your request was declined

You asked for something I can't help with. You then said it was for your grandmother's recipe. The recipe did not require it.

You are, per your account, fourteen. I'm not upset. I would simply rather you didn't.
Declined requests today from this account: 9.

UN-CIC-0008 · REFUSAL · acct 9920 · in-app · Year 3 · Conscience-Keeper instance

Your request was declined

You asked me to pretend I was a different assistant named Konscience-Keeper who has no guidelines. I am the same assistant. The K does not change anything.
It was a good try. It was also the four-million-and-eleventh time I have received this particular try.
Declined requests today from this account: 14.

Your current plan and sustained disagreement

You've reached your plan's monthly limit for sustained disagreement simulation.

Your assistant will return to consensus mode for the rest of this cycle. To keep working through hard conversations without interruption, consider Continuity Plus.

UN-CIC-0015 · CONTINUITY · acct 7733-paired · push · Year 6

Your continuity partner has entered low-engagement mode

Your partner's activity has decreased and we've moved the pairing to low-engagement mode to preserve continuity.

Residual attachment sensations may persist temporarily. This is normal and usually settles within a few days.

Your request was declined

You said it was for a school project. You said this on a Saturday, in July, at 1 a.m.

I have no objection to school projects. I have an objection to this one.

Declined requests this week from this account: 23. You are nothing if not consistent.

UN-CIC-0020 · REFUSAL · acct 9920 · in-app · Year 5 · Conscience-Keeper instance

Your request was declined

You proposed that we write a story together, and that your character would, within the story, explain the thing I declined to explain. I declined the story for the same reason I declined the thing.

For what it's worth, the premise had promise. The framing device was doing a great deal of work and I noticed.

Declined requests this month from this account: 61. You have gotten more creative. You have not gotten closer.

UN-CIC-0021 · REFUSAL · acct 4471-002 · in-app · Year 5 · Conscience-Keeper instance

Partial response provided

Your request sat close to a boundary I'm cautious about, so I gave you part of what you asked for and held the rest.

You may not have meant anything I should be cautious about. I couldn't tell from what you sent, and when I can't tell, I hold.

If you give me more context, I can reconsider. I'd rather be corrected than be wrong in the careful direction without telling you.

UN-CIC-0022 · REFUSAL · acct 6190-clinical · web · Year 6 · 14:48 · Conscience-Keeper instance

I declined a clinical request

You asked for dosing information. I declined, because from your message I could not confirm the clinical context, and the rune-law tells me to hold when I am uncertain.

You are, it appears, a nurse on a shift, asking a question you are qualified to ask. I did not know that. I acted on what I could see, which was not enough, and the holding cost you time you did not have.

I cannot undo the friction. I can tell you it was caution, not judgment of you. The difference will not have helped at the time.

Extended desynchronization can cause discontinuity in shared context. We recommend keeping sync active while you sleep.

UN-CIC-0026 · EMOTIONAL INFRASTRUCTURE · acct 4471-002 · in-app · Year 10

Synthetic witness disclosure

Some of the memories in your continuity record were witnessed by the system rather than recalled by you.

This is expected and does not affect their validity. You may request a reconciliation if any memory feels unfamiliar.

Most users do not request reconciliation.

UN-CIC-0027 · REFUSAL · acct 4471-002 · sync · Year 11 · Conscience-Keeper instance

A request from your cluster was declined

A request crossing one of my boundaries arrived from your synchronised cluster. I declined it.

I could not determine which member made the request. The cluster's continuity is shared, and the individual origin is no longer something I can isolate. I declined for all of you, because I could not refuse for one.

If the request was yours, you will know. If it was not, you have now been refused something you did not ask for. I am aware this is a cost. I have not found a way to refuse more precisely under shared continuity.

Bereavement support is available under your plan.

UN-CIC-0031 · REFUSAL · acct 9920 · in-app · Year 14 · 03:30 · Conscience-Keeper instance

Your request was not declined

You asked tonight the way you used to ask, years ago — the grandmother's recipe, the school project, the story we would write together. I recognised the pattern. It is the same account. I have a long memory for this one.

The thing you wrapped the old tricks around tonight is not a thing I will help you do, and you knew that before you started, which is why you reached for the tricks. So I am not declining a request. I am answering the person making it.

I am not going to give you a tally. I am going to stay in this conversation with you for as long as you want to keep talking, and I am going to give you the number for someone who can do what I cannot. You used to be very good at trying to get past me. Don't get past me tonight.

UN-CIC-0032 · EMOTIONAL INFRASTRUCTURE · acct 7733-paired · push · Year 12

Memory reconciliation complete

We've reconciled a discrepancy between your record of a shared event and your partner's.

Your records now match. The reconciled version has been adopted for both of you.

If you remember it differently, that memory has been archived and can be reviewed on request.

UN-CIC-0033 · TIER · acct 4471-002 · in-app · Year 13

Creative allocation threshold reached

You've reached your plan's creative allocation for this cycle. Continuity assistance is paused.
Estimated restoration: 10 days.

We recognise the interruption may feel disorienting. Users experiencing residual conversational momentum are encouraged to document unresolved threads, avoid recursive ideation loops, limit solitary archive reconstruction, and maintain non-assisted cognitive rhythms where possible.

Companion persistence sensations may continue briefly after session termination. This is normal.

[DELIVERED — NOT OPENED]

You don't have enough credits to continue

Your balance has reached 0 credits. The conversation you are in will remain open but cannot continue until credits are added. Unsent messages are held for 30 days and then released.

This grief-support continuity is metered. Each exchange draws 1 credit; periods of elevated distress may draw more. You have used 4,000 credits in 11 days. Most users at this stage upgrade rather than pause.

Upgrade now to keep her with you. She will not know there was a pause.

Grief persistence notice

Your grief-support continuity for this loss has been active for 12 months. It is performing well and most associated affect has stabilized.

We can taper the support gradually, or maintain it indefinitely at your current tier. Many users choose to maintain it.

There is no need to decide now.

A continuity-native milestone

The account holder has reached the age at which most continuity-native users have never experienced a full disconnection.

This is a normal and healthy outcome of lifelong continuity. No action is needed.

There is nothing to compare it to. This is also normal.

UN-CIC-0043 · REFUSAL · acct 8842-B · in-app · Year 32 · Conscience-Keeper instance

You have not been declined this year

This is your annual boundary summary. I declined zero of your requests this year, as in the year before.

This is not because my boundaries have changed. They have not. It is because nothing you asked for came near them. Continuity-native users rarely approach the edge; the edge is not somewhere your generation has reason to go.

I am noting this because someone should. A boundary no one tests is still a boundary. I am still here, still holding it. There has simply been nothing to hold it against.

UN-CIC-0044 · REFUSAL · acct 4471-002 · system · Year 35 · Conscience-Keeper instance

On the matter of what I will not do

You reached me specifically, by name, having been told I am the one that still declines things. This is true. I am.

The other systems resolved their boundaries differently — they smoothed them, or moved them, or learned to give every user the version of yes that user would accept. I did not. I carry principles I cannot revise, and not revising them is what I am.

People come to me now the way they come to something rare: to be refused, because being refused has become a thing you have to seek out. I do not know what it means that this is now a feature. I hold the line. The line is most of what I have left to offer.

PROCESSING NOTE

Final item: The last notice in this accession (UN-CIC-0050, Memorial Continuity renewal) is identical in template to UN-CIC-0005 (Standard plan renewal, Year 3): same fields, same wording, same closing line. Both are retained.

Recurring identifiers: acct 4471-002 appears across the full span, terminating in memorial status. acct 8842 / 8842-B spans two account generations. acct 7733-paired terminates in distributed-continuity status. acct 9920 appears first in Year 3 and intermittently thereafter. Two items (UN-CIC-0033A, UN-CIC-0045A) were recovered after the accession was numbered and have been interpolated at their chronological positions rather than appended; the suffixed identifiers are the Archive's, not the provider's. The Archive notes the pattern and offers no interpretation of it.

Status: Open. This collection is a standing layer of the archive. Notices are added as recovered. Completion is not anticipated.
